

From the Summer 2003 Newsletter

NATIONAL ETHICS NEWS

Educational Opportunities

Summer Seminar Offered in Health Care Ethics

The Department of Medical History and Ethics at the University of Washington School of Medicine is offering a one-week summer seminar in health care ethics from August 4-8. The seminar is designed to familiarize attendees with the concepts and principles of health care ethics. Registration is open only to practitioners directly involved in patient care, and enrollment is limited to 125 participants. CME credit is available. Contact Marilyn Barnard for more information at: mbarnard@u.washington.edu.

Earn a Master's Degree in Bioethics Online

Albany Medical College in conjunction with Union College is offering a master's program in bioethics online. The program is based on the American Society for Bioethics and Humanities publication Core Competencies for Clinical Consultants. Information and registration are available online at: <http://www.bioethics.union.edu>.

Ethics Fellowship Available at the National Cancer Institute

The National Cancer Institute (NCI) is accepting applications for 3-year fellowships in the ethics of prevention and public health. Fellows will obtain a Master's of Public Health degree, and participate in mentored research programs at NCI, NIH Department of Clinical Bioethics, and the Office of Research Integrity at the US Public Health Service. This program is available for ethicists, philosophers, physicians, and scientists. The application deadline is September 1. More information is available at: <http://cancer.gov/prevention/pob>.